ARIZONA SENTINEL.

J. W. DORRINGTON, Proprietor.

YUMA, - - - ARIZONA

THE DIVORCE RECORD.

There are 30,000 more divorced women in the United States than divorced men. Is this an indication of man's attractiveness or his frailty?—Los Angeles Herald.

It is neither an indication of man's attractiveness nor his frailty. Whether flattering to women's vanity or not, they are in a majority of cases what men make them. Women live for love, and through this best attribute of their nature they are often debased for the gratification of man's utter selfishness. When society demands the same standard of morality for men as is now exacted from women the "frailty" of the stronger sex will be most conspicuous.

The board of supervisors of Yuma contracted with Phoenix parties for the printing of the ballots of the county and other election supplies instead of having the work done at home in order to save a few dollars, with the result that the paper furnished was cheap and flimsy. The ballots were so thin that even when they were folded as the law requires the cross opposite the names of the candidates voted for could be seen through the folds. Neither were the names of the candidates printed on the tally lists as they should have been. Altogether it was a cheap john job, reflecting neither credit upon the parties who furnished it nor upon the supervisors who contracted for it.

Last Sunday's Los Angeles Times contained an article on General Diaz, president of the republic of Mexico, by the editor, General Harrison Gray Otis, who recently paid a visit to that country. He quotes freely from the historical record of the rise to power of President Diaz, with pleasing comments upon his military career, but he fails to grasp the deeper philosophy of the man and his political character. The article is similar to scores of others written by tourists to Mexico—light and frothy, pleasing to read but leaving no impression upon the mind. General Otis does not possess the creative faculty, neither is he a critic, not having that analytical mind which unerringly distinguishes the difference between cause and effect. His reportorial ability is good and his newspaper judgment far above the average, but in literature, in criticism and in the artistic use of the English language he displays a weakness in marked contrast with his ability as a newspaper manager.

Let us be thankful that the election is over. The papers of the territory can now devote their energies until two years shall have rolled away to the development of the territory's resources. It must be a relief to most of them, badly afflicted with partisan blindness as they are, to be freed from what they deemed was a necessity to uphold their party at any cost, and to save the country from innumerable disasters, the result too ofen being the infliction of personal wounds which time can never heal. The fierce political contest Arizona has just experienced naturally suggests the thought that if the blindly partisan papers were as zealous in presenting the natural advantages and resources of the sections in which they are published as they are in furthering the political interests of some office seekers, Arizona would soon double in population and wealth. Strange as it may appear to the uninitiated, newspaper men are even human, and too often so frail that they can see but dimly into the future. It is likewise true that those who climb to power upon the frailties of newspaper men too often forget the steps which led them to the pinacle of political fortune. This is also human, yet hardly ever believed or understood, and then not long remembered. It is perhaps best so. Who knows?

Mr. Bryan says he would rather be right than be President. An exchange adds that he runs no risk of being, either. Mr. Roosevelt is trying to be both right and President at one and the same time.

ELECTION RESULTS.

Following are the results of the election held last Tuesday in this county, with the precincts of Cibola, Harrisburg and Ehrenburg yet to hear from. They will not, however, make any change in the general result except possibly in favor of the republicans:

Wilson's majority, 89.

Ives' majority, 146.

Cronin's majority, 61.

The vote for district attorney was: Timmons, 338; Davis, 207; Ingraham, 273.

Ingalls' majority, 10.

Sanguinetti's majority, 35.

Speese's majority, 6.

De Vane's majority, 94.

The vote for supervisors was: Hinds, 358; Marvin, 472; Smith, 325; Clark, 286.

The socialist vote in the county was very small, and its consideration is, therefore, hardly necessary, as it cannot affect the final result.

CLOSING REFLECTIONS.

The campaign closed on Monday night with a rally by both parties, the republicans holding their meeting in Elks' hall and the democrats theirs in the court house, and the speakers for each party predicted victory at the close of the polls on Tuesday night. After the meetings on Monday night the chances of the several candidates were discussed on the streets and in the resorts and the partisans of each were firm in their belief of success. All were enthusiastic and good nature prevailed throughout. Upon the whole the campaign has been comparatively free from objectionable personalities, principles and policies of the two leading parties and the general qualifications of the several candidates forming the basis of all discussions. The extravagance of the democratic administration of the county's affairs received the attention due its importance, and the result of this feature of the campaign will be found in the returns.

Early on Tuesday morning the candidates and their friends were on the move, and when the time for the opening of the polls arrived all were ready for the final battle. Conspicuous as a worker at the polls was Mr. Ives, the candidate for the council. His early training in the school of democratic politics was there particularly displayed. He was in evidence everywhere, working and directing others how to work. He is made of the stuff that carry elections, whether the policies advocated by such as he are for the benefit or injury of the people. Other candidates were no less conspicuous, but were not so skillful in their movements.

The campaign for the republicans has been managed with force and skill and every detail attended to. The credit for this is largely due to the secretary of the county central committee, Peter T. Robertson, who has won the respect of his enemies as well as his friends. That he will become a power in the republican party in this county is certain, for his work has been clean and performed with an intelligence and alertness rare as it is commendable.

For the humble part the Sentinel has played in the campaign for good and economical government, and especially in the management of the legal and business affairs of the county, it has no explanation to make, for it has been actuated solely by the belief that a change in political methods would be greatly advantageous to the county and for the best interests of the people. It has the consciousness of a duty well done and as intelligently as the editor was capable of understanding the facts and circumstances presented for discussion and elucidation. Believing in the justness of the position the Sentinel has taken and hoping that all things will work out for the ultimate good of the people, the result at the ballot box must tell the story of its efforts for honest government.

Senator Ives made a brilliant campaign and exercised great judgment in persuading voters to support him. He captured every vote in his precinct except one. The Sentinel salutes you, Senator Ives.

THE NEW SMELTER.

A smelter for Yuma is no longer a doubt. A company has been organized mainly with Los Angeles parties with a capital of $100,000, and the corporate title is the Arizona Smelting and Reduction Company. Mr. Frank S. Rust, the secretary, spent last Friday and Saturday in Yuma, and informed the Sentinel that a site little west of the Quartermaster's reservation had been selected, and that the work of construction would be begun immediately. While here he closed a contract for the transportation of ores up and down the river, and said that the company was negotiating for other means of transportation so as to iusure a steady supply of ores by the time the smelter was ready for operation. Before his departure for Los Angeles last Sunday morning he appointed J. E. Ludy as local agent for Yuma.

The company will first erect one 50-ton gold and copper furnace and one 40-ton lead furnace, and additions to the smelter plant will be made as demands require.

The company desires to hear from mine owners within reach of the smelter in order to ascertain the character and quantity of ores which can be shipped to them, and miners should at once place themselves in communication with the secretary, Mr. Rust.

It is almost impossible to form an estimate of the benefits that will accrue to Yuma by the erection of this smelter. Never before in the history of Arizona has the mining interests been greater and the number of capitalists in search of good properties larger, and this section of the territory will get its share of the capital seeking investment if the people bestir themselves.

With the completion of the new smelter now assured an impetus will be given to the development of the mineral wealth in this vicinity that will surpass even the hopes of the most enthusiastic. There is no doubt that a large amount of ore can be secured in districts contiguous to the Colorado river and which for years has been shipped to San Francisco. A large percentage of the ore available for the smelter is of lead base, and it is said that more than enough carbonates can be secured for the necessary flux. The smelter proposition will be much aided by the low cost of water transportation.

In view of the bright prospects for Yuma it cannot be too strongly urged upon mine owners the necessity of putting themselves in communication with the new smelter company, so that it may be known approximately what amount of ores and their character the company can depend upon receiving by the time the smelter is ready to be put into operation.

WE HAVE BEEN WHIPPED.

The election is over for another two years and the day passed off quietly. Each party made a good fight and the democrats took the republicans into camp in a wholesome and good-natured manner. They have won, but their majorities have been reduced, which the republicans are pleased to record. The defeated candidates have taken their medicine without squirming and with no regrets for anything that might have been done previous to the fall of ballots. The people have spoken and their word is law, and the political enemies of yesterday are the business and social friends of today. Such is the simplicity as well as the grandeur of American citizenship. Now for business and the advancement of the interests of the county. The battle has been fought with vigor and won by our friends, the enemy, and we have surrendered unconditionally. What more can be asked?

REPUBLICAN GAINS!

As a result of the campaign made by the republicans in this precinct it is certain that the party has gained one justice of the peace and one constable. This is indeed encouraging, and by persistent and intelligent efforts in the future we may two years hence gain another constable. Despise not the day of small things.

The best characterization ever made of the democratic party is that by which it is usually depicted in the press, as a jackass, but the next best may be attributed to a Minneapolis paper which refers to the democratic party as, "The political grave robber" and illustrates its meaning by a cartoon showing the jackass pawing up dead issues from the political grave yard.

Ohio's choice lies between Senator Hanna, who is devoting a fortune, honestly acquired, and a knowledge of business principles gained from experience, to the upbuilding of the state, and Tom Johnson, who is devoting a fortune hoestlyn enough acquired, to the propagation of chimerical theories and the demolition of the state.

"One of my children was taken with cramp colic and suffered severely," says S. B. Elzee, of Monett, Mo. "I telephoned for a doctor, then gave a dose of of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and a few minutes later a second dose. Before the doctor came the child was relieved." For sale at Cotter's drug store.

Some papers think they can make a funny supplement by a liberal use of colored ink and a few pointless legends attached thereto. They are right; their supplements are funny, but they are far from humorous or witty.

Norris & Rowe's dog and pony show gave a performance in Yuma last Sunday, to the great delight of the small boy and to the pleasure of the grown-ups. It is a wonderful collection of trained animals, some of them apparently possessing almost human intelligence.

THE FIRST STEP

Of the child is an event in the mother's life. How proud she feels when the attempt to walk is begun so early as to evidence childish courage and sturdy strength. Such pride should be enjoyed by every mother. But it often happens that the child is timid, weak and deficient in vitality, and clings to the mother's arms with no desire to walk or play.

Mothers should learn that to have strong children they must themselves be strong, for the child's strength is the gift of the mother.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription by expectant mothers gives them health and strength to give their children. It nourishes the nerves, strengthens the body and gives great muscular strength and elasticity, so that the baby's advent is practically painless.

"I have been using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and can say it is just what you advertise it to be, and can cheerfully recommend it," writes Mrs. Victor J. Hadin, of Leonardville, Riley Co., Kansas. "I began taking it just two months before baby came and was greatly benefited by its use. The doctor who attended me said I did about as well as any one he had seen (as I was sick only about three hours), and also that your 'Favorite Prescription' was 'the one patent medicine' which he did have faith in.

"We now have a darling baby boy, strong and healthy, who weighed nine pounds when born (July 28th). During this month he has gained three and one-half pounds."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.
