ARIZONA SENTINEL.

J. W. DORRINGTON, Proprietor.

YUMA, - - - ARIZONA

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 12, 1902.

The election of Wilson to congress by a greatly reduced democratic majority gives color to the rumor so prevalent in certain parts of the territory during the campaign, that he was nominated to be slaughtered. His success was a sore disappointment to certain democratic leaders.

The senatorial committee on territories left Washington several days ago to ascertain the conditions in the three territories asking for statehood, and will shortly be in Phoenix. Senator Beveridge is a member of the committee, and his opposition to the admission of Arizona is no secret. The leading men of the territory should, therefore, use all efforts to convince him of the justice of Arizona's claim.

During the campaign Mark Smith told the voters that it was necessary for the territory to go democratic to insure statehood; that any change in the political status of either of the territories would defeat the omnibus bill; that New Mexico was certain to go republican, and that the democrats in Oklahoma had agreed to let the election go by default. Now, Mark, all the territories having maintained their political standing, shall we have statehood this winter as you said we should, or shall it be recorded, "So spoke the false archangel, and bad influence into the unwary breasts of his associates instilled?"

King St. Charles, editor of the Mineral Wealth, is the only newspaper man elected to the territorial legislature. Many are called but few are chosen. He belongs to the elect and is a thoroughbred. In the last territorial legislature and toward its close, when the statehood bill was up for discussion, some member remarked, in answer to another member who said "they had better hurry up as the time was short," that there was no need for hurry, as the national administration would soon be democratic, and Arizona would be admitted. King, who was temporary speaker, replied: "It is the opinion of the chair that there will be no democratic administration for the next forty years." Judging from present appearances his opinion must be taken as sound.

It would be interesting to speculate where Col. Wilson would "be at" now if Mark Smith had not taken off his coat and gone into the campaign. Mr. Smith confined his efforts largely to Graham, Cochise, Yuma and Maricopa counties. The result of the voting in these counties bear eloquent tribute to his efforts. We congratulate Col. Wilson upon his election. It must be very gratifying to him that Yavapai county did not roll up a bigger majority for his opponent.—Tucson Citizen.

Mark Smith made two speeches in Yuma county during the campaign just closed—one in the town of Yuma and the other in Somerton. Two years ago these two precincts were strongly democratic and at the last election they went republican. This county certainly "bears eloquent tribute" to Mark's efforts. "It would be interesting to speculate" what would have been the democratic majority in those precincts if Mark Smith had not invaded the county.

THIRTY-SECOND BIRTHDAY.

The Sentinel this week begins its thirty-second year. During its history it has met with all the vicissitudes of frontier journalism, but has never missed an issue. Two years ago a fire destroyed the entire plant—type, presses and everything, including the building. The Sentinel is to-day more prosperous than at any time in its history. Since 1880 it has been under the control of the present owner, and he takes this occasion to thank its patrons and readers for favors so freely shown, at the same time promising that in the future as in the past the Sentinel will work faithfully for the upbuilding of the county and the town of Yuma. Age creeps apace, but with each added year the Sentinel grows [illegible] fulness.

THE AMERICAN NILE.

The scheme to use the great flow of the Colorado river is perhaps the grandest ever conceived by man, and the results which will follow the successful erection of dams, the digging of canals and the enrichment of lands by the system of irrigation proposed are incalculable. Arthur P. Davis, principal engineer of the arid land reclamation service and head of the geological survey, who is making investigations on the river, is quoted in an interview as saying that it is proposed to erect diversion dams "to turn the waters from the bed of the river to the lands on the side." He has in view three places where these dams could be built, but says he is not at liberty to make them public until later. Of course, the withholding of information as to the locations of the dams is to prevent speculators from gaining an unfair advantage over those who would beccome bona fide settlers and cultivators of the lands reclaimed by the government. Notwithstanding the engineer's reticence, and without in the least reflecting upon him, is is, however, generally believed and understood that his plans contemplate four dams and that their locations will be: One at Norton, in this county, about sixty miles from this city by wagon route, with a capacity to irrigate 300,000 acres; a second at Bill Williams' Fork, to irrigate 400,000 acres; a third at Bull's Head, with 300,000 acres' capacity; and a fourth at Black Canyon, to provide for 200,000 acres. The estimated cost of these irrigation schemes is placed at $22,000,000. For this outlay could be reclaimed 1,200,000 acres, 500 miles of navigation provided at an estimated value of $10,000,000, and electric power possibilities in the neighborhood of $100,000,000 more.

A comparsion has been drawn between the historic Nile and the Colorado river, and an investigation will show that the two regions through which the rivers flow are strikingly similar from an agricultural point of view. The climatic conditions are a little more severe in the regions of the Colorado than those of the Nile. "Some common products are (or may be) alfalfa, wheat and grains of the sorghum class; the date palm, fig, orange, olive and pomegranate; cotton, melons and sugar cane."

If the proposed plans on the Colorado river are fully carried out we will have an "American Nile," with grander possibilities and a greater and more intelligent people than can be found in the land of the Pharohs.

While contemplating the plans as put forward by Engineer Davis the mind can hardly conceive nor the imagination picture the transformations that may take place—a dry and dusty desert into bloom and beauty—for when reading them they appear more like the emanations from the mind of a romancer than the deductions of a scientist. A moment's thought, however, will convince any one that no man can be a great engineer unless he possesses a vivid imagination. In working out mathematically what can be done with the great Colorado delta, and what the soil can be made to produce by the application of water, the mind naturally and logically sees a broad expanse of rich and fertile land, upon which are hundreds upon hundreds of thousands of beautiful and happy homes and a great and contented people. It requires but little further thought, with facts indisputable for its base, to imagine where civilization in the United States will rise to its pinacle and where literature and art will flourish as never before in this country. With broad navigable canals five hundred miles in length, upon which are boats of all kinds propelled by electricty, one can almost hear the voices of men and women in cheerful greetings as they pass up and down from point to point; the prattle and laughter of rosy cheeked children; and in the stillness of the evening the voices of strong-limbed youths and beautiful maidens just budding into womanhood.

On the borders of the Ameri- [illegible] will dwell no Egyptian a bare subsistence, but a free and independent people. Similar as the two rivers are in many respects, they will be wholly dissimilar in the character of the two peoples.

In all these schemes proposed by the government for reclaiming lands bordering on the Colorado, Yuma is greatly interested, for once they are consummated this will be the central point for traffic. Here will rise a great city rich in commerce and resources. A wrong impression that Yuma is too hot to live in with comfort unfortunately prevails, when in fact the reverse is true. During three months of summer the heat is usually intense, but in the spring and fall and winter months the climate is enjoyable. When the great government schemes are once under way it will be widely known what the climatic conditions are here, and then Yuma will experience phenomenal growth.

In the Ehrenberg precinct Morrison, Ewing, Ingalls and Sanguinetti received majorities. The precinct was otherwise democratic except for sheriff, which was a tie. This leaves Livington two ahead.

"One of my children was taken with cramp colic and suffered severely," says S. B. Elzee, of Monett, Mo. "I telephoned for a doctor, then gave a dose of of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and a few minutes later a second dose. Before the doctor came the child was relieved." How long will it take the man to fill the sack if he does not stop the leak? To attempt to nourish the body when the stomach is diseased is like trying to fill the sack with the hole in it. When the stomach and other digestive and nutritive organs are diseased, there is a constant loss of nutrition. Enough is eaten but the body loses flesh,—plain proof that the food eaten is largely wasted because it is not digested and assimilated.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It stops the leaks by which nutrition is lost, and enables the building up of the body by the nutrition derived from food. The gain in weight proves the cure.

"Three years ago I was taken sick with what the doctor called nervousness and indigestion," writes Mrs. Warren E. Parker, of Orange Street, Nantucket, Mass. "He gave me medicine for the trouble, but I could not eat even a little toast or oatmeal without suffering severely. In a few months I began to have distressing pains right in the pit of my stomach. I called the doctor again and he said I had catarrh of stomach; gave me medicine but it did not do any good. I lost 28 pounds in three months. I then commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicines and soon began to feel better. I have taken six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' two of 'Favorite Prescription' and six vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets. I have gained ten pounds. Can eat everything."

The next congress will be republican by from twenty to twenty-four majority. This is glory enough for an off year.

Preparations, it is reported, for the erection of the new smelter are progressing finely. When completed and in operation, quite a number of men will be regularly employed, which will add to the volume of business in the town. And more than this, it will be the means of opening up the mineral wealth of this neighborhood, which is known to be great.
