Unmitigated "Nerve."

Three weeks ago the Sentinel printed the following bit of advice to the city council:

"The city council has received a private offer of $2,600 for the old Catholic cemetery property. When the city council is ready to dispose of this valuable property it should be advertised and sold to the highest bidder, and not at private sale."

This offer was bona fide and was made by a resident citizen of Yuma, but was not accepted by the city. Last Saturday morning the city attorney, Senator Ives, came down from Tucson and a special meeting of the council was held that evening, no one except those interested being present or having any knowledge that a meeting was to be held. At this meeting the city attorney drafted and offered for consideration the following Ordinance, which the council adopted:

"BE IT ORDAINED: That the Village Attorney be instructed to confer with the Bishop of Tucson, and if the Bishop concur, to offer the cemetery property to the Southern Pacific Company for not less than $2,600, such offer to hold good for two weeks from the date on which it shall have been made."

It will be observed that the above Ordinance does not permit any other party except the Southern Pacific Company to purchase the cemetery property—shutting out any other offer that might be made; besides fixing an arbitrary price for a valuable piece of property, which would sell for more money than the amount named if other parties were given an opportunity to bid upon it. There is no question but that this property belongs, absolutely, to the city.

The property in question originally belonged to the city, which donated the same to the Catholic church, to be used by the church as a cemetery; it was stipulated that it was to be used for cemetery purposes alone, and when it was ceased to be used for such purposes it would revert back to the city. In the course of time the city condemned the cemetery property as a sanitary measure on account of its being in the heart of the city, and in lieu thereof gave the church for cemetery purposes ground in the new cemetery which had been purchased by the city, and the church has ever since utilized the same for burial grounds, besides removing its dead from the old cemetery to the new. Notwithstnnding these facts, as will be seen by the foregoing Ordinance, the city council has consented upon the advice of City Attorney Ives to place the city of Yuma in the position of a voluntary compromiser—that is to say it is conceded by the city that the property is still owned by the church, and if the Bishop "concurs" the sale will be arbitrarily made to the Southern Pacific Company at a fixed price.

We are informed that Senator Ives has compromised with the church, and if the sale is made to the railroad company the city wil receive one-half of the purchase price and the church the other half.

The city council's action in this matter is being severely criticised by the people, and with just cause.

A Great Statesman's Secret.

The secret of a celebrated statesman's long life was his systematic way of eating. Every bite of food was chewed thirty times before swallowing. The result was he naturally enjoyed good health. Most men and women bolt their food, and eat things which were never intended to be eaten. They become costive, have a bad complexion, lose flesh, and irritable and nervous and the first thing they know they are "played out." It is gratifying to know that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters cures stomach troubles. It is a purely vegetable medicine that has stood the test for fifty years: It cures cases which seem to be hopeless. Sufferers from any disorder of Stomach, liver or bowels should try it.

Found Dead in Bed.

W. H. Pierce, an old and well-known resident of Yuma and of the territory was found dead last Saturday night in bed in his room on Gila street, where he had lived alone for some time. The body was badly decomposed, and it is supposed that he had been dead since Thursday night, as he was last seen alive Thursday evening. The verdict of the corcner's inquest was that death resulted from heart failure. The only known relatives in the territory is a daughter, twelve years old, who is living with the family of Captain F. S. Ingalls. It is thought, however, that the deceased left more of a family, who reside in Nevada. He was 65 years old and lived in Nevada in the early days.

Spread Like Wildfire.

When things are "the best" they become "the best selling." Abraham Hare, a leading druggist, of Belleville, O., writes: "Electric Bitters are the best selling bitters I have handled in 20 years. You know why? Most diseases begin in disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, blood ank nerves. Electric Bitters tones up the stomach, regulates liver, kidneys and bowls, purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, hence cures multitudes of maladies. It builds up the entire system. Puts new life and vigor into any weak, sickly, rundown man or woman. Price 50 cents. Sold at Cotter's drug store.

Beautiful Singing.

The announcement that Mrs. Emma Moffatt would sing at the Methodist church Sunday had the effect of crowding the church to its greatest capacity. Mrs. Moffatt's singing was superb; the people of Yuma have had no such a musical treat before in years, if ever.

Notice.

All persons found violating the city fire ordinance will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

HART KILLED AND LEIVAS CAPTURED.

A Bold and Sensational Jailbreak Ends up in the Death of Matt. De Vane's Slayer.

ESCAPED ON SWITCH ENGINE

Overtaken by Sheriff's Posse, Hart Would Have Made Desperate Fight but Could Not Discharge Weapon.

The career of Thomas Hart, murderer, ex-convict and desperate criminal, is ended. Successful to a degree in a most sensational jailbreak, the fates which he cursed on a former occasion, when he had almost gained his liberty, again frustrated his escape, and ended his earthly existence.

Shortly after noon, Sunday, Wm. Neahr, guard at the county jail, opened the jail door to put a watermelon inside which some friend had brought for the prisoners. As he laid the melon on the floor, he was seized by Hart and Leivas and pulled inside, or nearly so, and Leivas quickly got outside and rushed into the sheriff's office and returned shortly with a six-shooter. The guard was struggling with Hart, each trying to put the other inside. Hart had a knife, and Leivas appearing with a gun, the two forced the deputy inside and turned the key in the lock. Both then went into the sheriff's office, where they secured a rifle and ammunition, and left the court house. It being Sunday, all the offices were deserted and not a thing seemed to stand in the way of a well-laid plain of escape. Hart had on an Oregon boot weighing some 70 pounds, and carried the rifle ready for instant use if intercepted, while Leivas wore shackles and carried the revolver. They went up through the railroad yards to the round house, perhaps 300 yards from the court house, and made directly for the switch engine, which stood over the ash pit. The engineer was in the cab. "Get to h—l out of here!" said Hart, pointing his gun at the engineer. "You, too!" said Hart, turning his weapon on the fireman, who was in the act of climbing on the engine. Both got out of range in short order. Leivas mounted the locomotive and began firing up, while Hart opened the switch for the engine to get on to the main track. The fireman ran across to the section house and informed the section foreman, Martin, and the latter appeared with a shotgun as the engine passed on the main track going east and fired through the cab window, wounding Leivas slightly in the arm. But the prisoners made good their escape out of the yards without further trouble. Leivas, who knew something about running an engine, having worked sometime about the round house, manipulated the lever, while Hart did the firing. Four or five miles out, Leivas threw open the throttle and both fugitives jumped off and struck across the country in the direction of Fortuna. The engine ran on nearly to Blaisdell station.

About twenty minutes after the escape Neahr, the jail guard, was released by a trusty. The news of the escape spread over town rapidly ond naturally caused great excitement. A posse was quickly raised and thirty minutes after Hart and Leivas broke from the jail an engine and box car, with posse and horses were flying over the rails in pursuit of the fugitives. Reaching the engine at the point stated the party began looking for the trail of the escaped prisoners, and a portion of the posse with Bill Neahr in the lead, surmising that the fugitives had abandoned the engine not far from Yuma, directed their search in this direction. Bill Neahr struck the trail first, at a switch between four and five miles from town. The trail led in the direction of Fortuna, and the posse at once struck out; the trail was plain and the men followed it easily at a rapid gait. Two miles out the Oregon boot worn by Hart was found, buried in the sand. It had been cut off by the use of a hammer and cold chisel taken from the engine. Leivas having also got rid of his shackles, the pair, freed from the heavy incumbrances, were making good headway. The posse increased their pace, and about sundown the two fugitives were sighted quite a distance off. The party then took a circle around to head off the two men, and as it was growing dark this was an easy thing to do and escape observation. After getting in advance of Hart and Leivas the posse rode cautiously in the opposite direction toward them. It was now getting too dark to distinguish objects readily, even at a short distance, and the horsemen must have realized that they were in a dangerous position. They were riding in a sort of V shape with Jim Kenney in the center and in front. The coming upon the escaped prisoners was sudden. Hart was lying down close to a bush, and Kenney almost rode over him. Hart spang to his feet and grasped the horse's bit and and held on while the frightened animal reared and plunged. A short distance away stood Leivas pleading for his life; his hands were up and his revolver lay on the ground. There was something evidently wrong with Hart's gun, as he could not fire it. Suddenly a volley rang out. Hart's hold on the bit released and he fell dead, with hardly more than a groan.

One of the party rode into Fortuna and notified the coroner, while another went to Blaisdell and telegraphed the news to Yuma. The remainder of the posse stayed at the scene of the capture during the night. H. C. Stultz, Justice of the peace and acting coroner of Fortuna precinct, came out to the scene Monday morning, when an inquest was held on the body of Hart, the verdict being in accordance with the facts as stated. An examination of the body showed that Hart had received five shots which entered the breast and front of the body. Hart was buried near to where he fell, which is about five miles from Fortuna.

The posse which made the capture—consisting of C. L. Brown, Wm. Neahr, Julio Martinez, Tom Arriola and Jim Kenney, headed by Under Sheriff Albert Behan, having in charge Louis Leivas,—returned Tuesday afternoon.

Leivis was only slightly wounded in the arm

Tomas Hart, the prisoner killed, was under sentence of death for the cold-blooded murder of Under Sherin Matt. De Vane in this city last January. He was convicted at the March term of court and was sentenced to hang April 5, but his attorney, H. C. Davis, secured a long lease of life for his client by appealing to the supreme court for a new trial, which acted as a stay of execution until the question was disposed of, which would have been in January.

Hart was comparatively a young man, not more than 31 or 32. He served ten years in Folsom, Cal., prison for robbery under the name of Dunham, and was accounted a hardened criminal.

Louis Leivas is under a charge of highway robbery, and will be tried the second time in December, the jury upon the first trial disagreeing.

Millions Given Away.

It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one concern which is not afraid to be generous. The proprietors of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, have given away over ten million trial bottles and have the satisfaction of knowing it has cured thousands of hopeless cases. Asthma, Bronchitis, La Grippe and all Throat, Chest and Lung diseases are surely cured by it. Call at Cotter's drug store, and get a free trial bottle. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteee.

Farmers Will Enlarge Their Canal.

The ranchers interested in the Yuma Valley Land and Water Company met at the court house Saturday afternoon, pursuant to call of the president of the company; the object of the meeting being to change the articles of incorporation to meet present emergencies. The company proposes to expend considerable money in deepening and widening their canal, and so increased the maximum indebtedness permitted to be assumed under the original aricles from ten thousand to thirty thousand dollars. The money has been raised, and a dredger will be put to work on the ditch at once. The farmers are in earnest and propose to have a first-class irrigation system.

To The Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I can recommed it with the utmost confidence. It has done good work for me and will do the same for others. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold ond the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, RALPH S. MEYERS, 64-Thirty-seventh St., Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by P. G. Cotter.

They Were Seven.

"Say, ma?"
"Well?"
"There are seven liars in our class at school."
"Oh, I wouldn't say that, dear. You might be mistaken."
"No, I ain't. Yesterday the teacher said that all of us that never told a lie should hold up our hands."
"And were there seven there who didnt hold up their hands?"
"No; there were seven that did."

Water rights in the Irrigation, Land and Improvement Co. (Ludy) canal, by U. G. Wilder, Box 46, Yuma, Arizona.

An eight-pound daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Alexander Saturday night, November 2nd. The event took place in Yuma, and Dr. Ap John, who officiated, reports all parties getting along nicely. The Sentinel regrets that Aleck could not have furnished another good republican voter. But he says it's all right; better luck next time.

S. H. King, who has been laid up in a Los Angeles hospital for the past six weeks as a result of injuries received in a runaway accident, returned to Yuma last Wednesday. His hip, which was broken in the accident is not entirely well, and will not be for some time to come, though gradually growing stronger.

Mrs. Jennie Meade returned from San Francisco last week, and opened her place of business Friday night. Miss Virgie Meade also returned to Yuma Thursday from Prescott, where she has been during the summer, and will have charge of the musical features at her mother's place.

Mrs. Patterson, wife of Lieut. Patterson, cashier of the Bank of Yuma, left for Safford Monday night on receipt of a telegram announcing the serious illness of her sister.

A REMARKABLE RECORD.

The Los Angeles Times is sending out figures showing the steady gain in the circulation of that paper for each September, since 1890, covering a period of twelve years. The following is the detailed circulation exhibit which The Times makes. It is of general interest because it may be said to be a fair index to the growth of the whole Pacific Southwest:

"The daily average number of copies printed circulated and sold by The Times in the month of September, from 1890 to 1901, inclusive, follow:

September, 1890	6,772
September, 1891	9,177
September, 1892	10,076
September, 1893	12,204
September, 1894	12,708
September, 1895	15,401
September, 1896	17,670
September, 1897	20,060
September, 1898	24,542
September, 1899	24,558
September, 1900	26,787
September, 1901	30,159

At the time of the assination of the President several extra editions were printed, none of which are included in the above figures for September, 1901,

The avarage circulation of The Sunday Times for each Sunday of September, 1900, was 37,293 copies and for September, 1901, the average was 46,700.

The circulation of The Times is growing faster than at any previous period in its history.

The population of Los Angeles in 1890 was	50,395
Its population in 1900 was	102,479

A GAIN OF 103 35-100 PER CENT.

The average circulation of The Los Angeles Times for 1890 was	6,713
For 1900 it was	27,791

A GAIN OF 313 PER CENT.

The Times also prints a greater number of pages and more reading matter than any other daily publication west of the "Rockies."
